☞ Notice.

DIFFICULTIES arising from the nature of the following work, the publisher has been compelled to remove to Philadelphia for the better execution of his plan. The editorial department has in consequence fallen into other hands. Mr. ALLEN's present engagement rendering it impossible to superintend it in another city. The friends and relations of the different signers to the Declaration of Independence are therefore requested to direct their favors to the publisher, No. 443, Market-street, Philadelphia.

For Publishing by Subscription,

A Biography of the Signers

OF THE

Declaration of Independence,

Accompanied with Plates.

To which will be annexed a History of the Proceedings of Congress, during the passage of the Law, and the Declaration itself, with the fac simile Engravings of the Signatures.

By JOHN SANDERSON.

TO THE PUBLIC.

When we consider the personal qualities of the statesmen whose names are affixed to the Declaration of Independence, the perilous occasion which demanded the exertion of their wisdom and deliberation, and the influence of their councils on the interests of mankind, we must acknowledge that very rarely a more imposing spectacle has been offered to the world, and we shall seek in vain in the annals of nations, for an event more worthy of commemoration, and of being cherished forever in the hearts of a grateful and generous people. The love of independence is interwoven with the frame and constitution of the human mind. It is almost the first sentiment that animates the infant's features in the cradle; and amongst all the actions and enterprizes of man, none has awaked into activity a greater exertion of the virtuous energies of his nature, none has excited a greater warmth of veneration, and has more imperious claims upon our gratitude, than resistance to tyranny and political aggression.

In all republican states the first tribute of genius has been paid to the patriot or the hero who has promoted the cause of liberty and maintained the independence and dignity of man. The animated canvas and breathing marble have rescued his features from the grasp of death, and the pen of the historian has inscribed the achievements to the imperishable records of fame. It would indeed be no favorable prognostic of the perpetuity of our republican institutions to discover an insensibility to the obligations we owe the memory of the illustrious patrons of American freedom. They have raised us, by their magnanimity, from the arbitrary dominion of a foreign power, to the distinguished elevation of a sovereign and independent people; they have asserted and maintained the imprescriptible rights of humanity by the "mutual pledge of their pledge of their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honors;" and, as long as virtue holds her empire in the hearts of their successors, the example of these generous benefactors will not be lost to the world; their names will not pass away nor be forgotten, or their glorious deeds be confounded in the common and casual transaction of life.—Ingratitude is a vice that in nations, as well as individuals, indicates the last degree of degeneracy and corruption; it is a vice that implies the absence of every virtue; it was in the age of Caligula that the name of the Scipios was proscribed, that the state of Brutus brought death on its possessor.

"The glory of our ancestors is the light of posterity," and the homage of the living cannot be offered to the merits of the illustrious dead with an effectual or sterile admiration. Great and splendid actions will seldom be achieved by men who have humble or ordinary objects in prospect. It is by contemplating the life and character of those who are marked out from the multitude by their eminent qualities, that we become emulous of their virtues and their renown. The trophies of Miltiades interrupted the sleeps of Themistocles; and Theseus, hearing the exploits of Hercules, was fired with his spirit, and became the successful rival of his fame. The rude savage of the desert listens with rapture to the deeds of his ancestors, and hangs around his hut the emblems of his father's valour.

More need not be said to enforce the utility of the publication we have undertaken, and which we now submit to the patronage of our fellow-citizens, with a hope, that from the liberality of their encouragement, we shall be able to present it to the public worthy of their approbation. We must depend for the illustration of many of the characters of our biography, upon the generosity of their surviving relatives and friends, to furnish us with whatever interesting materials may be in their possession; for which, with our grateful acknowledgments, we promise a copy of the entire work as a compensation.

CONDITIONS.

I. The work will be published in numbers or half volumes of 200 pages, octavo, and contained in ten numbers. To the first will be prefixed an appropriate frontis-piece—and the work will be commenced with the declaration of independence, with engraved fac similes of the signatures, and a compendious detail of the proceedings of congress, during the passage of the law. Each of the lives, unless when it is impracticable, will be preceded by a likeness of the person, engraved by the best artists in the United States.

II. It will be printed on fine paper, made expressly for the purpose, and delivered to subscribers at two dollars and fifty cents per number, payable on delivery.

THE DISTRESSED MOTHER.

A BALLAD.

I'll rest upon this heath awhile,
Faint, desolate, and lost to joy,
For I have wandered many a mile
To ask relief for thee, my boy.

In vain I hear'd the heartfelt sigh,
I told my piteous tale in vain,
Alas! each traveller pass'd me by
With harsh rebuke of cold disdain.

Was it for this thy father fought,
Did he for this so bravely fall,—
To have his wife and infant brought
To want and wo—bereft of all!

Thou droop'st, my child! thy beauteous face
Is fading like the beauteous flower,
Look up! for even in this drear place,
I'll save thee from the angry shower.

But hark!—a distant step I hear,
My frantic cries shall rend the air,—
Stranger, approach! thou'st nought to fear,
And save a mother from despair.

He turns,—he hurries down the slope,—
Cheer thee my boy! this way he flies,—
O horror! vain delusive hope,
My friend, thy aid's too late—he dies.

DROWNING.

Dr. Curtie the biographer of Burns, relates the following incident, in a letter to Walter Scott. It cannot fail to interest every reader. He had previously been speaking of the ballad of Anna Water, which is founded on a similar story:—"I once, in my early days, heard (for it was dark and I could not see) a traveller drowning in the frith of Solway, close by the mouth of the Annan River. The influx of the tide had unhorsed him in the night, as he was passing the sands from Cumberland. The west wind blew a tempest, and, according to the common expression, brought in the water three feet abreast. The traveller got upon a standing net, a little way from the shore; there he lashed himself to the post, shouting half an hour for assistance, until the tide rose over his head. In the darkness of night, and amid the pauses of the hurricane, his voice, heard at intervals, was exquisitely mournful. No one could go to his assistance, for no one knew where he was. The sound seemed to proceed from the spirit of the waters. But morning rose, the tide had ebbed, and the poor traveller was found lashed to the pole of the net, bleaching in the wind."

ANECDOTE.

Mr. Temple Stanyon, (says Dr. Birch) on some exigency borrowed a sum of money of Mr. Addison, with whom he lived in terms of intimacy and friendship, conversing on all subjects with equal freedom. But from this time he agreed implicitly to every thing Addison advanced, and never, as formerly, disputed his positions. This change of behaviour, did not long escape the notice of so acute an observer, to whom it was by no means agreeable. It happened one day, that a subject was started, on which they had before controverted: but now Mr Stanyon entirely acquiesced in Mr Addison's opinion, without offering one word in defence of his own. Addison was displeased, and vented his displeasure by saying, with some emotion, 'Sir, either contradict me, or pay me my money.'

DR. RATCLIFF.

One evening as this gentleman was sacrificing in a tavern to the purple god, to whom he was as much devoted as to the god of physic, a gentleman entered in great haste, almost breathless—"Doctor, my wife is at the point of death—make haste—come with me." "Not till I have finished my bottle, however," replied the doctor. The man, who happened to be a fine athletic fellow, finding entreaty useless, snatched up the doctor, and carried him out of the tavern. The moment he set the doctor upon his legs, he received from him, in a very emphatic manner, the following threat.—'Now, you rascal, I'll cure your wife in revenge.' The doctor kept his word.

HORNE TOOKE.

One day, at the hustings, at Covent Garden, during the election, Mr. B. a particular friend of Mr. Fox's, said to Tooke, rather rudely, "all the blackguards in London are coming to vote for you." Tooke made a bow, and replied, "I am glad to receive the information from such unquestionable authority."

CHINESE OPPRESSION.

In a late number of a periodical journal, published at Munich, by Baron D'Areim, we meet with the following, among other witty reflections. "The Chinese are subject to a very oppressive law; they are forced to tell truth to their monarch. In Europe we are exempt from this restraint."

ALEXANDRIA:
MONDAY MORNING, December 13.

AMERICAN MANUFACTURES.

Extract from the minutes of a Convention of the Friends of National Industry, assembled in the city of New-York, to take into consideration the prostrate condition of our Manufacturers, and to petition Congress for their relief and protection, which commenced on the 29th November, and terminate on the 1st of December, inst.

Col. Wm. Few, of New-York, President.
Mathew Carey, of Philadelphia, Secr'y.

The following gentlemen appeared as Delegates, and after presenting their credentials, took their seats in the Convention:

From Massachusetts.—Samuel Davis, Jas. Shepherd.

From Rhode Island.—Samuel Greene.

From Connecticut.—John Babcock, Chas. Bostwick, Theodore Dwight, John R. Watkinson, James M. L. Scofield.

From New-York.—William Few, H. E. Haight, Isaac Pierson, Joseph Smith, Peter H. Schenck, Matthew L. Davis, Thomas Morris.

From Greenwich, (Village.)—Robert Kelly, James Lamb.

From Fishkill.—Abraham H. Schenck.

From Poughkeepsie.—George Boothe, J. W. Stephens.

From New-Jersey.—Peter Cole, Daniel Holsman, Nicholas Smith, Samuel Colt, Jno. Manning.

From Pennsylvania.—Mathew Carey, W. Young, Thomas Hulme, Samuel Richards, George M'Calmont, John Harrison, Henry Horn.

From Delaware.—James Siddal, E. I. Dupont.

From Maryland.—John Hillen, J. Sykes.

From Ohio.—Arthur Tappan.

A number of other gentlemen also attended, from various parts of the United States, who, although not regularly appointed as delegates, afforded the Convention the benefit of their information, on the important business, for the transaction of which they were convened.

Sundry resolutions were offered for the consideration of the convention, containing the principles proper to be introduced into a memorial to congress; which resolutions having been discussed and adopted, were referred to a committee appointed to draft said memorial. At a subsequent meeting, the committee reported the draft, which, after undergoing some amendments, was unanimously adopted.

It was then ordered, that said memorial be signed by the president, and countersigned by the secretary; and that it be transmitted to congress, and printed.

On motion, resolved, That it be strongly recommended to the manufacturers in each of the different states, to appoint a committee of publication, for the purpose of disseminating such essays as may be calculated to dispel the prejudices that exist on the subject of manufactures.

On motion, resolved, That it be recommended, in the most earnest manner, to the manufacturers and their fellow citizens in the different states, to form societies for the encouragement of domestic industry, and to call a convention in each state, on the third Monday in December, (instant,) for the purpose of ascertaining the rise, progress, and decay of manufactures throughout the Union, and that they appoint, at such state conventions, delegates to meet a general convention, to be held in the city of New-York, on the third Monday in January next, there to report such information as may be collected in pursuance of this resolution.

Resolved unanimously, That this convention entertain a high respect for the perseverance, zeal and talents, which have been displayed by the authors of the Philadelphia addresses, on the subject of national industry; and that, in conformity with these feelings, the convention present them their most sincere and hearty thanks for their great and patriotic efforts.

Ordered, That all written communications which it is necessary to make previous to the next general convention, be addressed to the President of the Pennsylvania Society for the encouragement of American manufactures, Philadelphia.

A committee was then appointed to forward the memorial to congress; to have the same printed; and generally to perform such services as become necessary to carry the decisions of the convention into full operation.

No further business appearing, the convention adjourned.

WILLIAM FEW, President.
MATHEW CAREY, Secretary.

DEPRAVED DEED!!!

On Wednesday evening, the 24th ult. Jacob Shenberger, of Windsor township, York county, he having no family and living quite isolated by himself, as he was sitting by his fireside, was shot by some person unknown through the window of his house. He was found on Sunday last, lying on the hearth, with his lower extremities burnt. A coroner's inquest was held, whose report we hear, is that he came to his death by being shot by some person unknown.

Notice is given in the Philadelphia papers that an election for twenty Directors of the United States' Bank will take place at the Banking House in Philadelphia, on the 3d day of January next. [Nat. Int.

A great number of petitions were presented this morning, amongst which were the following of a general nature.

By the Speaker.—The memorial of sundry citizens of Philadelphia, praying that additional encouragement may be given to the Manufactures of the country. [This is the memorial of the Philadelphia Society.] Referred to the Committee on Manufactures.

By Mr. Meigs.—The memorial of the New-York institution for the education of the Deaf and Dumb, praying for a donation of public land for the support and encouragement of the humane objects of this Association. Referred to a select committee.

Mr. Scott, of Missouri, from the Committee yesterday appointed on that subject, reported a bill to authorise the people of Missouri Territory to form a constitution and State government, on an equal footing with the original states; which bill was twice read and referred to a committee of the whole House.

On motion of Mr. Campbell, of Ohio, a committee was ordered to be appointed to report a bill providing for taking the fourth census or enumeration of the inhabitants of the United States.

On motion of Mr. Cannon, of Tennessee, the House came to the following resolution;

Resolved, That a committee be appointed to enquire into the expediency of paying the soldiers and officers of the Volunteers and Militia, for horses and other property lost whilst in the service of the United States on the Seminole campaign, in all cases where such loss was sustained in consequence of a failure on the part of the general government to furnish the necessary forage, and without any fault or neglect on the part of the owner.

On Motion of Mr. Cook, of Illinois, the House came to the following resolutions:

Resolved, That the Committee on Public Lands be instructed to enquire into the expediency of establishing additional land offices in the state of Illinois, for the sale of the Public Lands.

Resolved, That the same committee be instructed to enquire into the expediency of extending the time for completing the payments for lands heretofore purchased from the government within said state, and that the committee have leave to report by bill or otherwise.

The House adjourned.

THE COSSACKS.

The Cossacks are a description of troops peculiar to the Russian army, regulated by their laws, exempt from taxes, and governed under the immediate authority of their own Attaman, or chief, chosen from amongst themselves: they are relieved from all impositions of conquest, but the obligation for every male to serve gratuitously for five years with the Russian armies, and some interior services connected with their own police.

Blessed with a country of rich plains and noble rivers, which Nature covers with a glorious canopy of a fine climate, and fills with redundant food; the Cossack still retains his warlike character, and unites with the most enthusiastic admiration of his country, and a disposition to profit of its enjoyments, the ambition of martial service, and an errant spirit of adventurous and foreign enterprise.

In the land which gave him birth, he is the peaceful and civilized inhabitant, natural in his affections, and domestic in his habits; but in other countries he is the lawless Scythian, respecting no property or rights.

In the qualities of private character, the Cossack is to no man inferior—affectionate to his family; faithful to his friend; hospitable to the stranger, and generous to the distressed; with graceful simplicity of manners, and a candour that commands confidence. His military virtues are splendid in common with the Russian nation, but the hereditary habits of war, and perhaps a natural genius for that species of it in which they are engaged, he adds an acute intelligence and capacity that is not generally shared. Mounted on a very little ill-conditioned, but well-bred horse, which can walk at the rate of five miles an hour with ease, or, in his speed, dispute the race with the swiftest, with a short whip on his wrist (as he wears no spurs), armed with a lance, a pistol in his girdle, and a sword, he never fears a competitor in single combat, but in the late war, he irresistibly attacked every opposing squadron in the field. Terror preceded his charge, and in vain discipline endeavored to present an impediment to the protruding pikes.

But although the Cossacks, on some occasions, have discomfitted, by direct attacks, regular cavalry, it must not be supposed that they are calculated to act generally in line.—Their service is of a different character, which requires greater latitude, and liberty of operation. They act in dispersion; and when they do re-unite to charge, it is not with a systematic formation, but a massee, or what in Germany, is called the swarm attack: but even then the order should originate from their own officers, who best know their genius and powers, or, which is frequently the case, be the effect of a voluntary impulse that simultaneously animates the whole body, and which is expressed by the yell of excitement more frightful and terrific than the war whoop of the Canadian savage.

The character of the Cossacks certainly never attained so high a military reputation, as it gained during the memorable invasion of Russia, by the myriads of Napoleon Bonaparte; but as they fought under the eyes of their Attaman, the pride of distinction, the hope of reward, animated the humble to the most splendid efforts, until, by success, they acquiesced an irresistible confidence! So enthusiastic was the ambition to march with their chief, so emulous were the warriors of the Don to re-engage the French, that old and young flocked as volunteers; and even a patriarch of 100 years of age joined the array, and couched his lance in the fields of Poland.

Those who have not seen the achievements of the Cossacks, may, perhaps, from the impression of former opinion, hesitate to credit their superiority in Cavalry attacks; but what body armed with sabres can resist a lance projecting above six feet beyond the horses heads, sustained by the firmest wrist, and impelled with the activity of the race-horse?—The Cossack is not first armed with the lance when he proceeds to war, or when he attains the age of manhood; it is the toy of his infancy, and the constant exercise of his youth; so that he wields it, although from 14 to 18 feet in length, with the address and freedom that the best swordsman in Europe would use his weapon. In hands less familiarized to this arm, it would be telum imbelle sine ictu: but in his direction, under the guidance of a horseman, so powerful and dextrous, it becomes invincible, but by fire; and the presuming enemy who rashly adventures an unequal contest will perish, or obtain an inglorious experience.

The equipment of the Cossack's horse is light—a snaffle—a halter, of which the rein is always held in the hand, that he may be instantly attached on dismounting, or be led with facility—the tree of a saddle on which is bound a cushion stuffed with the Cossack's property, and on which he rides—form the whole of his accoutrements and baggage.

His dress is equally simple; a blue jacket, (with a white frog on the cuff or cape) fastened with hooks; a pair of loose trowsers, plaited so as to cover and conceal the opening in front; a pair of short boots, a black cap, made of the unshorn lamb, from which depends a red pandour sack, a plume on the side of the cap, or, what is more common, except in the Attaman's regiment, merely a cloth cap with a kind of sack hanging behind, in which he stuffs his provision or other articles—and a white or black hair Circassian short cloak—is the costume, of the Cossack on service, and of his country.

But still an Asiatic taste for the embellishment of warlike accoutrements is blended with the simplicity of this equipment. He disdains the ornament of artificial metals, and solid silver is wrought throughout upon his arms and accoutrements.

The Cossacks of the body-guard, who are always with the Emperor, indeed, clothe themselves with a magnificence which, corresponding with their extraordinary proportion and stature, renders them the most superb corps of cavalry that can be imagined.

The admiration of ornament is not, however, selfishly confined to the decoration of their own persons. The Cossack, in his wars never forgets his home, never disconnects his thoughts from his family, with avidity he seeks for tokens of his recollections; he estimates money but as the means of obtaining these more valued objects; and he exchanges for female trinkets, even at an exorbitant depreciation, the spoil that he pursued with eagerness, and acquired with hazard.

ORIGIN OF THE WORD "DANDY."

This term which has recently been applied to a species of reptile very common in the metropolis, appears to have arisen from a small silver coin, struck by King Henry VII. of little value, called a Dandy Pratt; and hence Bishop Fleetwood observes, the term is applied to worthless and contemptible persons.

In the quaint books of the elder time, we sometimes find a character delineated with a pencil as lucky, though perhaps not so elegant, as that of La Truvere. The ensuing description, though deformed by many a quibble, will cause the reader to laugh, in despite of the frown of Taste, or the mandate of Criticism.

THE MUSICIAN.---A CHARACTER.

A musician is like an echo, a retail dealer in sounds. As Diana is the goddess of the silver bow, so is he the lord of the wooden one; he has a hundred strings to his bow; other people are bow-legged, but he is bow-armed; and, though armed with a bow, he has no skill in archery. He plays with his cat-gut and kit-fiddle. His fingers and arms run a constant race; the former would run away from him, did not a bridge interpose and oblige him to pay toll. He can distinguish sounds as other people distinguish colors. His companions are crotchets and quavers. Time will never be a match for him, for he beats him most unmercifully. He runs after an Italian air, open mouthed, with as much eagerness as some fools have sought after the philosopher's stone. He can bring a tune over the seas, and thinks it more excellent because far-fetched. His most admired domestics are, Soprano, Sicillano, Andantino, and all the Anos and Inos that constitute the musical science. He can scrape, scratch, shake diminish, increase, flourish, &c. and is so delighted with the sound of his viol, that an ass would sooner lend his ears to any thing than to him; and as a dog shakes a pig, so does he shake a note by the ear and never lets it go till he makes it squeak. He is a walking pillory, and crucifies more than a dozen standing ones. He often involves himself in dark and intricate passages, till he is put to the shift, and obliged to get out of the scrape by scraping. He tears his audience in various ways; as I wear away my pen, so does he wear away the strings of his fiddle. There is no medium in him; he is either on a flat or a sharp key, though both are natural to him. He deals in third minors and major thirds, proves a turncoat, and is often in the majority and minority in the course of a few minutes. He runs over the flat as often as a race horse—both meet the same fate as they terminate in a cadence; and the difference is, one is driven by the whip-hand and the other by the bow-arm; one deals in stickado, and the other in staccato. As a thorough bred hound discovers by instinct his game from all other animals, so an experienced musician smells the composition of Handel and Corelli. Timothy Caigut.

Extracts from a Law

Of the Corporation to provide for the speedy extinguishment of Fire, &c.

Sec 1. That every proprietor of any dwelling house, or store house within the limits of the corporation, shall, at his or her own expence, provide as many fire buckets, made of good and suitable leather, and containing at least two and a half gallons, as shall be equal in number to the stories in such house. Provided, That no proprietor shall, in any case be compelled to provide more than three buckets for one house. Every proprietor who shall neglect to procure the proper number of buckets in the manner herein directed, shall forfeit and pay one dollar per month for each bucket he shall so neglect to procure. The proprietors of all dwelling houses and store houses which shall hereafter be erected within the corporation, shall furnish the same with buckets in the manner before prescribed, within two months after such houses shall be occupied; or failing to do so, shall be subject to the penalties before mentioned.

2. Where the proprietor of any dwelling house or store house residing out of the limits of the corporation, shall neglect to comply with the requisitions of this act, the occupier of such house shall within two months after coming to the possession thereof, procure the necessary buckets; and failing to provide the same, shall be subject to the like penalties as are in such case imposed on the proprietor.

5. It shall be the duty of the superintendent of police, once in six months at least, to visit the houses within the limits of the corporation to examine and take an account of the buckets belonging to such houses, and to report to the mayor the names of all persons who shall neglect to provide and keep the same, according to the requisitions of this act

Fifty Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY from the subscriber, on Thursday, the 11th inst. a negro man, named DICK, who sometimes calls himself Dick Douglas. He is a small man about 5 feet 6 inches high, and is not a very black man. I purchased him from the estate of Edgar McCarty, esq. Cedar Grove, Fairfax county, Va. and it is likely that he may be lurking about that neighborhood or Colchester, as he has a wife at capt. Berry's of the latter place; or he may have gone to Loudoun county, as he has lived there in the neighborhood of Wm. McCarty and John McCarty, near Leesburg. He had on and took with him an old grey cloth coat and a brown do pantaloons of drab colored domestic cloth. He is much addicted to liquor, and is a coarse shoemaker. I will give 20 dollars if taken in the district of Columbia. Thirty dollars if taken in Fairfax county, and the above reward if apprehended in any other place, and secured so that I get him again; and reasonable charges if brought home. WM. B. STUART.

100 Dollars Reward.

RAN away from the subscriber living in King George's county Va. on Monday the 22nd March, a yellow man named about 22 years of age, his tore teeth wide apart, and cannot speak very quick—had on Virginia cloth clothes and carried off a shaggy great coat, he has a father named Peter Hall, who lives with the widow Morgan, at Oak Hill, Fauquier Co. and his grandfather, old Frederick Hall, is supposed to be living at Mr. Terrett's near Alexandria, and it is likely he may be lurking about there.—I will give the above reward for apprehending and securing said fellow so that I get him again, and reasonable charges if brought home. J. H. WASHINGTON.
JAMES,
Masters of vessels and others are forewarned against harboring or carrying off said fellow tf June 14

100 Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY from the subscriber, living near Aldie, Loudoun county, Virginia, on the night of the 11th inst. a negro man, who calls his name NED BIAYS. He is a shrewd, intelligent negro, about 5 feet 7 or 8 inches high; 30 years of age, well made, active and polite Had on when he went away, a sky colored coat, and corded pantaloons. His right eye sore, apparently occasioned by a blow, the blood having settled around it. His ears have been pierced, and had green silk in them when he went away. It is expected he is now lurking about Fairfax court-house and Aldie. The above Ned Biays ran away on the night of the 25th of last Aug and was caught on the 11th inst on the night of which he effected his elopement by drawing the staple to which he was fastened by the handle of a pan while there was no person in the kitchen but himself. He was caught on the 11th inst. a few miles below Aldie, but I think it improbable that he has gone near the same place again. I will give 100 dollars if he is taken out of the county, and fifty if taken in the county, and secured so that I get him again, and all reasonable charges if brought home. GEO. GULICK.
P. S. It is supposed that the said negro has obtained papers of freedom, or a free pass, or something of the kind. G. G.

100 Dollars Reward.

I WILL give the above reward to any person who will return to my possession, negro LAWRENCE, who assumes the sirname of FENWICK. This fellow left my farm, on the Wicomico river, in Charles county, Md. on the 6th July, in consequence of his own outrageous conduct towards my overseer. He is a negro of a fine erect figure, good features, asmooth black skin, rather above the middle stature, of a youthful appearance for one of thirty years of age, and of great plausibility and natural smartness. His ears grow remarkably close to his head, and on the inside of his lower lip he has a white mark or spot. I purchased him 4 years ago of the estate of Mrs. P. H. Courts, of this county. I am led (by circumstances which have come to my knowledge since he absconded,) to believe that he will endeavor to make his way to King George county, Va.; should he not take this route, he will probably be met with in the District of Columbia, or in the upper counties of this state, on his way to Pennsylvania. I apprehend he will change his name, and if committed to jail, refuse to state to whom he belongs, as the misconduct which preceded his departure, & his absconding, have all appeared since to have been premeditated. He took all his clothes with him, of which he had a large number; among them—a new bearskin over-coat, a long close bodied blue coat, a pair of striped jean pantaloons, one or more white waistcoats, besides many articles of coarse cloathing; these, however, he will probably exchange, or sell them for cash to defray his travelling expenses.
I will give the above reward to any person who will bring him home to me, or FIFTY DOLLARS if confined in jail, and notice given me, so that I recover him.—Should he be taken out of the state, I will also pay all reasonable costs and charges which may attend the bringing him home.
I. T STODDERT,
West Hatton, near Allen's Fresh Post-Office, Charles county, Maryland.

100 Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY on the 25th of April last, a man called NED, formerly the property of Mr. Fitzhugh, of Fairfax, and by him sold to Hepburn & Dundas He had on when he went away an old country blue and white cloth coat, and kersey trowsers—his right hand in a sling, in consequence of the kick of a horse. Ned is a stupid looking fellow, and hesitates very much when he speaks. I will give fifty dollars if apprehended in the District, or the above reward for apprehending him out of the District, so that I get him again.

S. Drew, Merchant Tailor,

Removed from Fairfax-street to the corner of King and Columbus streets, and his prices falling,

RESPECTFULLY acquaints his customers and the citizens in general that he has removed as above, where he will study to give satisfaction. He has by him a small but well assorted stock of goods, which will be found on inspection to be of the best quality, the whole of which he wishes to sell low for cash, and as further inducements to purchasers he offers to cut out any goods, bought of him to any size or pattern gratis.
S. Drew aware, of the advantage a ready money business has over one where long credit is given, thinks that a distinction ought to be made in the prices in each case: and as the price of provisions are low at present, he is glad to be able to announce to those customers who will feel disposed to pay him ready money for his work, that he will reduce the price of making to them according to the present journeymen's wages; and to prevent any supposed imposition on the one hand or disatisfaction on the other he is willing to be goverued by the printed regulations of prices by which the journeymen are paid in Alexandria.
N. B. Bread, flour, beef, groceries, liquors or any thing valuable taken in exchange for clothes.
S. Drew has this day opened a tavern in the same house, where he has laid in a supply of Philadelphia and the district porter and ale, together with liquors of the best quality, and he feels confident that he shall be able to give satisfaction to all who will please to favor him with a call.—He is fitting up his house for the accommodation of boarders, travellers, &c. and from its central situation, good beds and stabling, together with other requisites, he presumes that it will be found a convenient establishment.

Virginia, negro HARRY, aged about twenty three years, about five feet ten inches high, very black, well built, has a considerable impediment in his speech, when spoken to evinces much confusion, and replies almost unintelligibly: had on when he left home, a much worn suit of domestic cloth. I have every reason to believe that he is endeavoring to pass for a free man, and as such went off in some of the bay craft during the late fishing season. All masters of vessels are forewarned from harboring or taking into their employ said negro, under penalty of having the law rigidly enforced against them.
